AttentiveDelightfulTab — Website Scaffold

Project brief

This Replit project preserves a website scaffold with React, routing, query-state infrastructure and theme styling. The inspected Home component still displays a building-in-progress message, and Replit returned no current publication status. I include it as an honest view of work in progress rather than presenting an unfinished starter as another launched product. It is separate from the live GitHub Pages website and has not been established as that site’s source of truth.

Ownership

Personal Replit work in progress

Evidence focus

Review the current source snapshots and project README for the actual starting point. The next useful milestone is an implemented user workflow, not a broader list of scaffold dependencies.

Scope

Unfinished scaffold; not a released application. Shared framework components do not establish that every advertised stack component is being used by a finished feature.

Skills

Project setup, frontend organization, honest work-in-progress documentation